Part A. (READING)

Patrick's reading an article about the town that he's visiting. Read the passage below and answer Questions 1-6.

A Nice Little Town called New Kingston

New Kingston is a tiny town with only five thousand people. In the centre, you can find not only the high street and many different shops, but also a green park where people can go to have a walk or just rest on the grassy fields.

In the middle of the park, there is a bakery called Ginger King. They only sell gingerbread cookies. Their cookies are not the soft ones that most of you may have tasted somewhere else, Ginger King's version is much harder and crunchier, and their cookies are best eaten when they are fresh out of the oven.

Opposite the park and further away from the high street, there is one pizza shop that always has a long queue. If you would like to know more about the history and the people of New Kingston, I recommend you visit the New Kingston Museum. You'll see loads of artefacts from the town. Feel free to walk around and take as many photos as you want!
